

British Columbia White Sturgeon

Sturgeon have an immense amount of power and speed, and are capable of peeling 200 yards of line off the spool in seconds. Even though Sturgeon are mostly bottom dwellers, their fighting ability can be compared to that of any BIG GAME sport fish. Sturgeon fishing is available year-round on the Fraser River with the main season running from April to the end of November. During this peak period, Sturgeon gorge themselves on the abundance of food present in the river system. With Whit Sturgeon able to exceed 20 feet in length and more than 1,500 pounds, every angler needs to get out on to the Fraser River and have a chance at hooking into one of these prehistoric goliaths. Forty-five minutes east of Chilliwak is a beautiful stretch of river that offers truly remarkable fishing experience. It is the beginning portion of the Fraser River Canyon where the river gets narrower, a lot deeper, and, a lot faster. Most of this part of the Fraser River is simply unfishable,
