

Huntin' Fool Welcomes Link's Wild Safaris as Our International Hunt Planning Partner

Thinking of Traveling Abroad for a Hunting Adventure?

I've never talked to a Huntin' Fool member who doesn't thirst for adventure. As we plan each year's hunts, it's quite common to look inside the borders of our own country first, and rightfully so. From Dall sheep in Alaska to the diminutive Coues deer of the southwest, a single lifetime could never afford us the opportunity to truly experience all that our country has to offer when it comes to hunting. However, the same sense of adventure that inspires a lifelong mid-westerner to hunt Idaho's elk for the first time also tugs at us to see even more of our ever-shrinking globe.

At Huntin' Fool, we are going to continue to focus on helping our members maximize their precious time in the field in North America. At the same time, many of us have personally hunted overseas and we know just how rich that experience can be. New species, new terrain, and new culture are all amazing to experience first-hand, and we know that most of our members would rank an international hunt very high on their bucket list of hunts.

In light of that, we took great interest when Jay Link, owner of Link's Wild Safaris, approached us to discuss the possibility of becoming our go-to source for international hunting adventures. After more than a year of discussion and research, we are excited to announce our endorsement of an international hunt planning partner whom we believe exudes the same passion for exotic species that Huntin' Fool does for species within our own borders.

Jay's extensive experience in business leadership coupled with his passion for hunting makes him a great partner for us and a great hunt planner for you. Link's Wild Safaris has acquired a vast inventory of hunting adventures that spans the globe and encompasses a list of species that would be too long to list here. In short, we're confident that we've found a perfect partner for our members who want to plan an international hunt-of-a-lifetime.

If you're thinking of planning a hunt for worldwide big game, a wing shooting extravaganza, or even a high adventure fishing trip, give us a call to discuss your international wish list. As always, we consider it a privilege and a responsibility to help our members plan hunts that make memories to last a lifetime.

Sincerely,

Jerrod Lile
